1. On 12 May 1953 Stesnov (fnu), room 226, USIG, received a letter from the lamp factory in Oberweimar to the effect that five seaworthy crates containing shaded (or shielded) lamps (Schirm-leuchten) were ready for pick-up; the price for this shipment is 8,900 DEM in round figures.1/
2. A recent order issued by N. V. Guskov, chief of the Soviet chancellery at USIG, states that all incoming German mail addressed to "those officials, such as Bobylev, Pirogov, Stesnov, etc., who are very seldom in their offices at USIG," will in the future be routed to the Russian chancellery by the German chancellery unopened 2/
3. The following are four of the German drivers at USIG Headquarters:
  - a. Erich Wartstein - an older man, is the chauffeur assigned to Bobylev (fnu)
  - b. Walter Heischer - an older man, is the chauffeur assigned to Laptev (fnu). Laptev is currently on leave in the USSR2/
  - c. Heinz Schumann - a driver not assigned to any one official
  - d. Kurt Petzuch - a driver assigned to Polynev (fnu), chief of the USIG Planning Section, and to the latter's deputy, Titov (fnu). Polynev is currently on leave in the USSR.
4. In accordance with a new regulation recently put into effect at USIG, all incoming German mail addressed to the "Technical Bureau" (room 204) is to be delivered to that room without being logged in the German chancellery and without being opened.
5. A large amount of mail arrives regularly at USIG by courier for Belayev (fnu) of the Scientific-Technical Bureau, room 154. This mail is always passed directly to the Soviet Interpreter Pool and is not logged by the German chancellery.
